Legislature Predicts Senate Committee Will Approve Tax Bill During the Coming Week

Harrisburg, April 20—(AP)—Chairman T. Newell Wood (R-Luzerne) said today his senate finance committee probably will approve the house-passed income tax bill next week.

Committee approval would touch off another battle in the upper chamber comparable to the free-for-all that upheaved the house for two weeks.

Five Republican senators already have come out against the one-half of one per cent levy despite Gov. Fine's insistence that the bill be passed to balance his $1,220,000 budget for the next two years.

They are in a position to block a clear-cut administration triumph on the income tax if the 20-vote Democratic minority maintains its opposition.

Wood said he expected the finance committee will meet on the income tax bill next Tuesday.

The Luzerne county senator recently said, however, that he opposed public hearings, a stand that was taken by the GOP leadership in the house.

The five GOP senators who have announced opposition to the income tax bill include Sens. G. Robert Watkins (Delaware), Montgomery F. Crowe (Monroe), Henry J. Propert (Montgomery), C. Arthur Blass (Erie) and Edward J. Kessell (Lancaster).

A top Republican leader, who declined quotation by name, predicted that enabling FEPC legislation will die in house and senate committees.

The legislation would prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, creed or color.

"These bills will meet the same fate they have met in several past sessions of the legislature," the GOP source declared.

Even though FEPC bills have been introduced in the general assembly for the past several years, none has been able to gain committee approval.

Sen. James S. Berger (R-Potter) is head of the senate labor and industry committee. He also headed the committee last session when it killed FEPC bills before it. Rep. W. Stuart Helm (R-Armstrong) is head of the house labor relations committee, studying FEPC legislation. This is Helm's first term as chairman of the committee.

Both Berger and Helm stated this week their committees have taken no action yet on FEPC bills, but both denied the bills have been killed.

Both Republican and Democratic election platforms last fall called for enactment of FEPC legislation.

Speech Expected to Result in Policy Showdown With Army High Commands

Washington, April 20—(AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's claim that the joint chiefs of staff once shared his views on Korean war strategy fired demands in Congress today for a policy showdown with the military high command.

The 71-year-old general of the army had gone on to New York, there to receive the nation's biggest welcome home, but he left behind him a capital torn with the bitterest controversy of a decade.

From Democrat as well as Republican lawmakers came demands that the joint chiefs of staff answer quickly whether they agree—from a military standpoint—with a four-point win-the-war program the deposed Pacific commander laid before a cheering congress yesterday.

The Truman administration replied immediately to MacArthur's statement that he believed his strategy views had been shared in the past by most military men, "including our own joint chiefs of staff."

The reply did not directly refute that declaration. Clayton Fritchey, chief public relations man of the Defense Department, said he had been authorized by the White House to say President Truman's action in firing MacArthur "was based upon the unanimous recommendations of the president's principal civilian and military advisers including the joint chiefs of staff."

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the top military policy group, had no direct comment, but he told reporters after a speech at Chapel Hill, N. C., that as advisers to Mr. Truman the joint chiefs "rendered our advice to him on a military point of view."

In three public appearances here yesterday the ousted Pacific commander blasted not only at what he called "blind" efforts to appease Red China and Russia, but at "the internal subversion and corruption and detailed regimentation" he said are threatening American life.

Reaction to his congressional speech was predominantly favorable for MacArthur's foreign and military views.

REDS POUND ALLIED LINES AT CHORWON

Tokyo, April 20—(AP)—Stubborn rear-guard Communists today hurled two counterattacks against Allied units closing on Chorwon, presumed Red base.

An unestimated number of Reds attacked American troops eight miles southeast of Chorwon. The fight raged into late afternoon.

About 200 Reds hit Allied lines in the same area Friday morning but were dispersed by artillery within 15 minutes.

Allied patrols were reported fighting strong Red units Friday night at several other points north of the front.

Doughboys wielding flamethrowers against Red outposts burned a path for tanks which moved up within gun range of Chorwon.

A United Nations tank-infantry column captured a hill one mile north of Hwachon reservoir's east tip after a four-hour fire fight with 300 Reds.

The Allied column hit the stubborn pocket of Red Koreans Friday morning. Heavy air and artillery attacks softened the Communists just before the column rushed the hill.

Patrols easily dispersed a Red force northeast of Yanggu.

Artillery killed an estimated 50 Communists grouped near the reservoir's north bank.

Banquet Is Held By F.F.A. of Sugar Grove - Farmington

Lander, Apr. 20—About 80 persons, students and their parents, were in attendance last night in the community house for the annual spring banquet of the Sugar Grove-Farmington Chapter, Future Farmers of America. A delicious supper menu was served by the WSCS members of the local Methodist church.

Rev. Gustav Erickson, Methodist minister, gave the invocation and Maynard Sweeney served as toastmaster for the program. David Marsh welcomed the boys and their parents and Travers Stohberg, president of the joint school board, voiced the response.

Addresses were given by Robert Warner on "The Chick of Tomorrow Contest"; Gordon Hindmire, "The RFFA Feed-Selling Campaign"; Norman VanOrd, "Raising Champions"; T. R. Sponser, county vocational advisor.

Richard Farver, agriculture instructor in the school, presented Darwin Ekstrom, who is a potential candidate for the American Farmer Degree, highest award given in FFA work.

Guest speakers were Morris Schaffner, Erie, whose topic "I Read Meat Like a Book", had to do with grading of meats; and President Hunter of the National Poultry, Egg and Meat Board, whose topic was "The Economy of the Poultry Industry".

A lighter touch to the program was the music of the Swede Hollow Gang in a number of pleasing selections.

BODY IN RIVER

Aliquippa, April 20—(AP)—Steelworkers found the body of Mrs. Mathilda Klaas, 32, of Ross township, wedged between two barges yesterday in the Ohio river near the Jones and Laughlin Steel Mill.

The truck driver escaped unharmed.

Three Senators Grapple With Each Other In Angry Aftermath of Radio Program

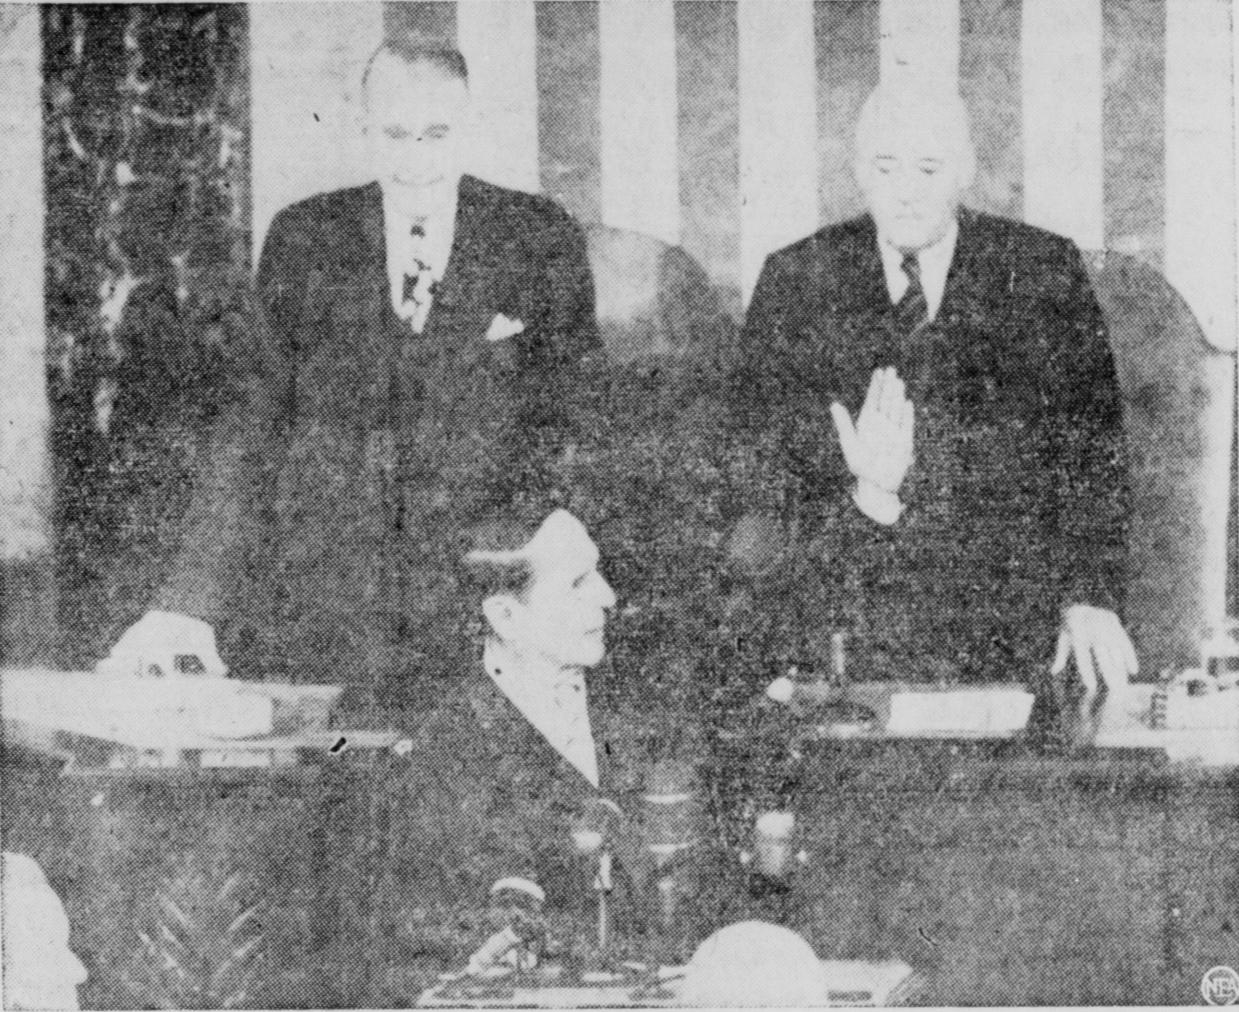

Washington, April 20—(AP)—Three senators grappled with each other today in an angry aftermath of a radio program argument but those present agreed no blows were struck.

Senator Capehart (R-Ind.) told reporters he pushed Senator Humphrey (D-Minn.) out of a radio recording studio after Humphrey "called me a dirty name."

Capehart said he also pushed Senator Lehman (D-Lib. - N. Y.) back sharply when he tried to intervene. The row grew out of disagreement and argument over policies of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Reaction to his congressional speech was predominantly favorable for MacArthur's foreign and military views.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) was the Greatest Ovation Ever Given Returning Hero Extended To Deposed General in Gotham

New York, April 20—(AP)—An estimated 7,500,000 persons turned out in New York today to give Gen. Douglas MacArthur the nation's greatest welcome to a returning hero.

The estimate of the astonishing and almost unbelievable size of the cheering, flag-waving throngs that lined the 15-mile route of his 50-car motorcade came from Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy.

From buildings to curbs the sidewalks of New York were packed with a dense mass of hoarsely shouting humanity. Office building windows were jammed.

Many of the spectators welcoming the old soldier back from the Far East came from neighboring states—Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The crowd nearly doubled the size of the 4,000,000 turnouts for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The people gushed forth from subways and piled into the city on special trains and buses.

Showers of torn paper and ticker tape rained throughout the gaily-decorated city from Central Park to the canyons of lower Manhattan's massive skyscrapers.

Vessels in the harbor tied down their whistles to add to the tumult.

Cheering throngs greeted him from the moment he drove out of his hotel driveway in a big open automobile at 11:06 a. m.

The weather was perfect—sunny and cool.

The general smiled and waved with his familiar crushed officer's cap with its "scrambled eggs" visor and a long army overcoat. Seated beside him was Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri in a blue topcoat and a gray Homburg hat.

Also in the car were Grover A. Whalen, the city's "official greeter," and Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, the general's aide.

A throng gathered outside the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel burst into cheering when the general's automobile appeared from the hotel's underground garage.

Shouts of "Hi, General," could be heard.

The wives of the general and the mayor rode in a second car. The general's 13-year-old son, Arthur, rode with his mother.

Healed by 86 motorcycle police, the 50-car motorcade turned north on Park avenue for Central Park where thousands of school children were waiting to shriek a welcome.

Torn paper showered from buildings along the normally-staid upper East Side district between the hotel and the park.

Mrs. MacArthur wore a maroon woolen dress with a matching small-brimmed hat, a short black sealskin jacket, and black suede gloves. Her costume was set off by a puorup pup head (urus) rings, and a corsage of two white orchids.

Mrs. Impellitteri wore a mink coat, with purple orchid on the left shoulder.

Sitting between the two women was the MacArthur's son, Arthur, (Turn to Page Thirteen)

Gym Packed to Capacity by Delighted Crowd For Annual Spring Band Festival

Jam-packed to the rafters, Beatty Junior High School was the scene last night of another of the wholly-delightful series of Spring Band Festivals which have been making musical history in Warren and Bradford over the past few years.

Long before the time set for the opening bar of music played by the combined Bradford Owl and Warren Dragon Bands, practically every inch of seating space in the big school gym was occupied.

With ticket sales managed by the Warren School Music Boosters Club, Inc., and proceeds to be used for the Boosters' Band Uniform Fund, the Beginner and Beatty Dungaree Bands staged a sale of home made candy during the evening, with at least one new uniform as their goal.

Principal Floyd Bathurst, of the High school, in welcoming the visiting student-musicians and their director, expressed gratification

Monthly Meeting Of YM Directors Proves a Busy One

The board of directors of the YMCA held their regular monthly business meeting at the "Y" last evening with Don H. Mowell vice president as chairman of the session. The devotional period was led by Brackett Ayers and reports presented or discussions led by the following: Hilmar Roos, chairman of the building committee; N. D. Paterson, chairman, membership committee; Roy L. Blodgett, chairman personnel committee; S. Knox Harper, chairman, public relations committee; F. H. Hetrick, chairman religious emphasis committee and Harold S. Hampson, chairman, World service committee. Others present were A. L. Rasmussen and Dan K. Walton.

Among the important items of business transacted was a discussion of badly needed repairs to the "Y" building, some of which are now being made such as an essential new roof and repairs to the outside walls of the building, and how the cost of these necessary repairs was to be met.

Final plans were also announced by F. H. Hetrick, chairman, for the annual meeting and centennial celebration of the YMCA in the United States to be held (Turn to Page Thirteen)

Government Lifts May First Ban On Use of Aluminum

Washington, April 20—(AP)—The government today lifted its May 1 ban on using aluminum in making more than 200 civilian products. It ordered instead a 50 per cent cut in use of the metal during May and June.

In another order, the National Authority (NPA) put plastic type nylon under allocation beginning June 1.

This does not apply to textile nylon from which nylon hose and other wearing apparel are manufactured, but does apply to the nylon used in making paint brushes, lenses and various industrial parts.

NPA said it relaxed the aluminum ban to allow additional time for manufacturers of less essential civilian goods to convert to defense production.

Examples of consumer goods which may be produced under the 50 per cent aluminum limit during May and June are:

Automobile hardware and trim, barber chairs, bathtubs, beauty parlor equipment, beverage mixing and serving equipment, burglar alarms and protective systems, burial vaults and urns, candle molds, cigarette lighters, dresser sets, fences, wire, hedge clipping machines, shovels, scoops, scrapers, venetian blinds, fittings and accessories, and playground equipment.

Aluminum also will be permitted in making non-residential windows during May and June to complete orders received prior to Feb. 20, 1951.

Court Hearing Testimony in Involved Litigation Over Settling Beatty Estate

Testimony was being heard in the county courthouse today by Judge Allison D. Wade in another chapter in the long, involved legal proceedings stemming from settlement of the Beatty estates.

Purpose of the current civil court proceedings is to determine whether commissions charged by the Warren Bank and Trust Co. for administering the Walter W. Beatty estate are proper and in accordance with charges customarily made by banking interests for such services.

Administrative details for the estate were related by Holger N. Elmquist, Vice President of the Warren Bank and Trust Co. Three witnesses, representing trust departments of Pittsburgh banks administering large estates, also testified. They were John A. Byerly, Vice President of Fidelity Trust Co.; James D. Harlan, Asst. Vice President of Peoples First National Bank and Trust Co.; and Alan D. Christner, Asst. Vice President of Mellon National Bank and Trust Co. All three witnesses said they thought the administrative commissions charged by the local bank were "very fair and reasonable."

Representing Warren Bank and Trust Company in the proceedings are Judge Elder W. Marshall and Attorney Thomas J. McManus, of Pittsburgh, and Attorneys J. H. Alexander and W. S. Clark of Warren.

Representing Grace C. Beatty, widow of Walter W. Beatty, are Attorneys Donald L. McCaskey of Pittsburgh and C. Dick Cable of Tionesta.

Foremen's Club Has Third Roundtable

The Management Development Group of the Warren Foremen's Club held its third in a series of five roundtable discussions at the YMCA last night, with R. J. Hartung, manager of the Parts Division of Sylvania Electric Products Co., Inc., as the answer and resource man. Fred L. Plummer, director of engineering for the Hammond Iron Works, served as chairman.

The subject for discussion was, "The Sales Dollar—What Happens To It?" Hartung presented numerous graphs and charts to show dollar percentages spent for materials, wages, overhead and taxes. A

HERE ARE CHINESE AIR BASES MacARTHUR WANTS TO BOMB. A major reason why General MacArthur wanted to bomb the Reds beyond Korea's Yalu River boundary is highlighted on this Newsmap, based on data from the National Geographic Society. From the borders of Soviet Siberia in a mighty arc through Manchuria and around the Yellow Sea, lie more major airfields than in all the rest of China put together. Major airports at 26 Manchurian and Chinese cities are closer to the heart of Korea than Tokyo, as indicated by the light circle on the map. In addition the Reds have been hurriedly rebuilding air bases in North Korea. All of which helps explain why the biggest jet battles in history have raged over North Korea.

The SIREN of SILVER VALLEY

By PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

Chapter 3

WHEN Denton's body was found, the Double D crew were hell-bent on riding right over to the Star and tearing it apart, but were dissuaded by Silverstone's marshal, Al Sanders, who pleaded for a chance to track the murderer down. By the time he was forced to the admission that the task was beyond him, the Star was prepared for attack, and the two out-fits marked time, snapping and growling at each other like strange dogs and hiring all the hands they could possibly round up.

They talked for a while longer, and when the fellow did so, ducked, caught the swinging arm, and turned and bent swiftly, hurling the man over his back. He hit the street with a thud. Jeff straightened and faced the Double D crew. "That ends it," he said sharply. "There'll be no war started tonight."

The man he had thrown slowly to his feet and Jeff hopped over to his own side of the street.

Jeff joined the marshal on the sidewalk, and the lawman said, "Thanks for the help. But look out for that feller you threw."

Jeff thanked her again and dismounted. The table with the checkered cloth was set for two and the girl smilingly waved him to a place and sat down opposite him.

"Not this kind. Shag's prussic acid. Prussic acid—and lead."

JEFF went to bed that night committed to the fight on Diana Denton's side. From what he had heard it was a just fight. The Double D had lost cattle, and the Star was suspected of stealing them, Dan Denton was shot in the back and the only ones who had cause to murder him were the members of the Starr family or their crew. Mrs. Denton's desire to drive them out of the valley was quite understandable, even commendable. It was public range and belonged to the one who could hold it.

He was approaching the Bonanza on his way to the hotel when an outburst of shouts reached him and he saw Star men surging from the saloon to mass on the sidewalk. At the same time he saw the Double D men come pushing out of the Purple Palace across the street. He hurried his steps and presently could make out the cause of the disturbance. Two indistinct figures were fighting in the street, their quickly shifting feet stirring the dust.

Jeff halted, quick-eyed and alert. This might be the beginning of a fierce and bloody war. If six-guns began to flame!

A man came up, panting, and stopped to peer through the gloom at Jeff. He was a big man and Jeff caught the dull shine of a badge on his vest. He said, "You're a stranger, ain't you? Help me separate them or all hell is gonna bust loose."

Jeff said, "Let's go!" and they ran out into the street.

A man left the Starr crew and went loping towards the two fighters, and when he shouted Jeff recognized the voice of Ed and she made a charming picture to anyone whose thoughts were not on Diana Denton. Jeff did notice that her hair was the color of polished bronze and that the eyes which regarded him through their fringe of long dark lashes were hazel in color. Her skin was smooth and richly tanned and there were freckles on the pert nose.

A girl came out of the doorway and stood watching them. She wore levis and a flannel shirt with a gay scarf about her neck.

He halted his horse, touched the brim of his hat and said, "Howdy, Miss. Could you tell me where I can cross the creek and keep my nose dry?"

The answer came in a clear, soft contralto. "Of course. Just follow the path on the other side of the clearing."

He smiled. "Thanks a lot." He glanced about him admiringly. "This sure is a lovely spot. And the smell which comes from your kitchen there must be trout in this creek."

She smiled back at him and he saw white even teeth and a dimple in one cheek. "Yes, it's lovely and there are trout in the creek. Why don't you get down and sample my cooking?"

Jeff thanked her again and dismounted. The table with the checkered cloth was set for two and the girl smilingly waved him to a place and sat down opposite him.

There were grilled trout, potatoes, stewed tomatoes and fresh baked bread, and they ate with the avid appetite of youth and good health, wasting little time in conversation.

They topped off the meal with dried-apple pie, of which Jeff was persuaded to have a second helping, and when at last they rose Jeff grinned at her and said, "That sure was a swell meal, Miss."

"My name is Ruth." "I'm Jeff. Mighty good at wiping dishes, if I do say so myself."

"Don't bother; there are so few of them I can do them in a jiffy." She got up and he rose with her. She said, "That trail across the creek doesn't lead to any place in particular. Just to the Double D ranch."

"That's where I'm headed. I'm the Double D foreman."

"You—!" She broke off abruptly, staring at him, the friendliness gone from her eyes. He saw her face tighten. "I wish I'd known that before I invited you to eat with me."

STATEMENT MAY HELP CLEAR THE AIR

Millions of readers across the nation doubtless will share the opinion as expressed by DeWitt MacKenzie, Associated Press foreign affairs analyst, when he says: "Now that General MacArthur has presented a defense of his stewardship in southeast Asia one is left with the feeling that the military differences between him and the administration weren't so great they couldn't have been resolved more easily."

MacKenzie is of the opinion that "perhaps this cloudburst will help clear the air, not only for America but for her anxious allies in the fight against Bolshevism."

The main charge made by the general's critics has been that his strategy threatened to expand the Korean conflict and land the United States and her allies in a major continental war with a Red China backed by Russia.

The consensus of military observers has been that such a development would be catastrophic for the democracies.

They have argued that it would play directly into Moscow's hands, that it would give Bolshevism a chance to bleed the United States and other western powers militarily and economically and thus prepare them for the "kill" in the final showdown.

However, it doesn't appear from General MacArthur's speech before the joint houses of congress that his strategy contemplated such an involvement of American and other U. N. forces.

MacArthur's program wasn't calculated to involve America in a major war on Chinese soil.

The other major issue involved in the dispute revolved about the relative importance of Europe and Asia in the war with Bolshevism. The Washington administration has taken the stand that America must concentrate her efforts against Communism in Europe.

MacArthur yesterday reiterated the view which figured in his dismissal by President Truman. This was that since the Bolshevik menace is global, "we can't divide our effort."

There is, of course, no argument but that the Bolshevik menace is global. However, the relative importance of Asia and Europe is bound to continue a hot subject of debate. That importance may vary from time to time, and circumstances will have to be dealt with as they arise.

As MacKenzie so aptly puts it, "What we don't want is for America to get involved in a major Asiatic war to which Russia is not committed militarily. This would permit the Soviet to conserve her strength for an assault on us when we had been sufficiently weakened."

"There is no indication that we are in danger of letting ourselves get caught in such a predicament. But we have traveled a rough road of argument to determine that point."

HIGH-COST-OF-LIVING BLUES

Out of Washington comes a Census Bureau report that 40 of the 48 states spent more money than they took in during 1950. Back in 1949, the figure was 33 of 48. In 1948, the majority of states had greater income than outgo.

State government debts rose to record high levels in 1950 as state after state failed to balance its budget despite peak revenues. Why these deficits in 40 states?

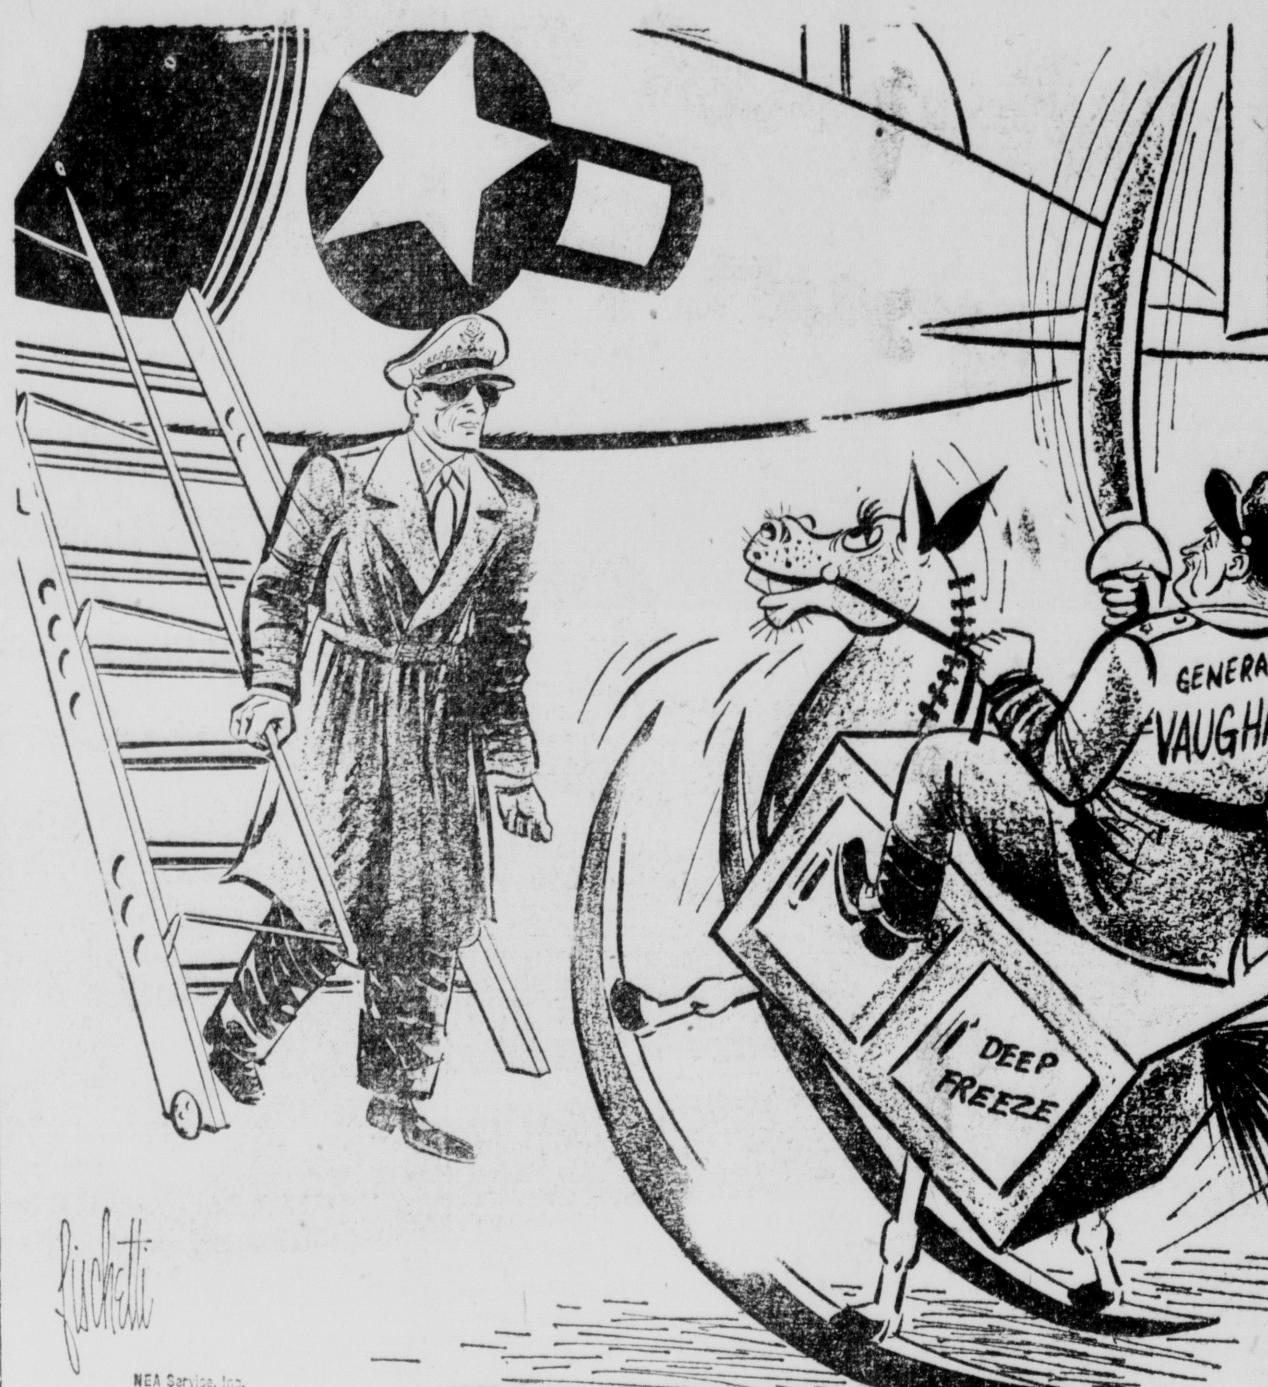

Biggest reason, says the Bureau is the rise in cost of operating schools, hospitals, welfare and mental institutions, and general welfare programs. Some of these advances reflect the booming cost of living. Others stem from the fact that more and more people are participating in welfare programs.

With inflation unchecked and welfare programs still expanding, no early end to this state deficit trend is in sight. It's a grim reminder that we face mounting burdens whether there's a defense effort or not.

There is nothing that seems to bring residents of two communities closer together than the annual exchange band concerts, such as are staged so successfully each spring season by school officials with the aid of music boosters interested in the Bradford Owls and Warren Dragons bands. Another of those delightful programs played here last evening was thoroughly enjoyed by a capacity crowd that packed Beatty gym.

Presidential Greetings

Here And There

This 'N' That: Remember twenty years ago when the late Billy Munn, of Garland, was busy organizing an old fiddler's contest to be staged at the Library theater? . . . Fred Schwab, Corry High School coach, has revealed that scholastic basketball lost $149.22 during the 1950-51 season, the financial report covering both junior and senior high basketball shows receipts totaled $1,065.63 as against expenditures of $1,215.05. . . . Roy H. Persons, Franklin, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows in Pennsylvania, and well known to many Three Linkers in the area, has announced his candidacy for commissioner of Venango county, on the Republican ticket at the primary election in July; Mr. Persons operates a paper and paint store in Franklin and has been active as a contractor for the past 35 years. . . . A bill that has been introduced in the house at Harrisburg would put the serving of food on an optional basis by holders of liquor licenses. . . . Many baseball fans from the Corry area are planning to take in one or more of the Cleveland-St. Louis games this weekend in hopes of getting a look at Freddie Marsh in action with the Browns. . . . The Benjamin Rush award, which is to be presented to A. A. Albaugh by the Warren County Medical Society in recognition of his long service to shut-ins, particularly to patients at the Warren General Hospital, has arrived and arrangements are being discussed by a joint meeting from the Medical Society and Elks Lodge for a club dinner when the presentation will be made, the details of which will probably be decided upon over the weekend. . . . The board of directors of the New Process Company has declared a dividend of 50 cents per share on the no par common stock, payable May 1, to stockholders of record April 20, 1951. . . . Auto license plates would be issued only once every five years under a new house bill submitted by Rep. Russell Headlee, who proposes that the present annual licensing system be dropped in favor of his five-year plan. . . . Another new house bill, offered by Rep. Edward Dunn, of Northumberland county, would direct the state revenue department to issue only one license plate instead of the customary two every year. . . . Considerable stress is being laid on the fact that this is the 75th or diamond anniversary year for the National League while the American League is observing its 50th or golden anniversary season. . . . Dropped in on Bill Sechrist, former Pennsylvania Railroad engineer, 304 Pine street, the other evening and found him convalescing from his recent illness in such fine shape that he is able to supervise spring house-cleaning which is well under way at his home. . . . 443 YWCA's is being laid on the fact that this is the 75th or diamond anniversary year for the National League while the American League is observing its 50th or golden anniversary season. . . . Dropped in on Bill Sechrist, former Pennsylvania Railroad engineer, 304 Pine street, the other evening and found him convalescing from his recent illness in such fine shape that he is able to supervise spring house-cleaning which is well under way at his home. . . . 443 YWCA's throughout the United States will be celebrating National YWCA Week April 22 to 28. . . . According to the Kane Republican the ore being hauled over the local division of the Pennsylvania Railroad is not the start of the big transfer of ore from the Great Lakes ships at Erie east to the steel mills, but is ore from the huge piles remaining at the docks from last season; it is expected that the first iron ore boats will begin unloading late this month at Erie, after which the big diesels will start hauling endless trains over the division. . . .

Friday Roundup: One evidence of the way millions of citizens in the nation were gathered around radios and televisions during the talk of General MacArthur Thursday afternoon is gained from the fact that there were practically no persons on the streets in the downtown section of Warren while the deposed commander was on the air. . . . Lt. W. P. ("Bill") Merritt, of the Pennsylvania Railroad police, Erie, former well known Warren resident, with Chief of Police Harley Drake, of Corry, apprehended a resident of that city the past three weeks, Calvin Zelmer Morris, 28, who is held there under $500 bail on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident, driving without a license and operating a car with illegal license plates, as a result of crashing through the Pennsylvania Railroad gates in Corry last Sunday evening. . . . Old timers report that it was fifty years ago Wednesday eight inches of heavy snow covered the area and trains were running off schedule with many roads in the district blocked; the snow began on April 18, 1901, and stopped the next day. . . . Beginning at sundown today the 14th day of the Hebrew month of Nissen and continuing for a period of eight days, ending April 28, the festival of the Passover will be celebrated. . . . LeRoy Schneeck, popular WNNE program director and announcer who left today to join his family for a week's vacation in Florida, had the unusual experience of joining in the "Happy Birthday" song for those on the WNNE list, including his own four-year-old daughter, Jan. . . . Looks like a nice weekend in prospect--take it easy.

'Voice' Fund Cut Imperils Secret Broadcasting Program

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—A ring of 14 one-million-watt broadcasting stations to surround and blanket Russia and the Communist orbit of satellite states is now being planned for the Voice of America. With four more new high-powered broadcasting stations in the U. S. and the 43 other transmitters known to exist, this would give "the Voice" a total of 61 outlets through which the aggressive "Campaign of Truth" could be beamed to the Communist world.

Soviet Russia now has an estimated 1200 broadcasting stations set up to jam all foreign broadcasts directed at the Russian people. In spite of this, it is believed that about 20 per cent of the free world broadcasts get through to the heart of Moscow. About 80 per cent get through to the suburbs of Moscow and more get through to areas remote from the jamming stations.

Since it usually takes more power to jam a wave than to broadcast it, the new Voice program should give the Kremlin plenty to worry about. Legal limit for a commercial broadcasting station in the U. S. is 50,000 watts. The newly planned ring of 14 foreign and four U. S. transmitters would each be 20 times as powerful. This whole network was planned by George Herrick, a young U. S. radio engineer who first got German transmitters working in 1945.

Details of this expansion plan for the Voice have been kept quiet. They were forced in the open by recent action of the House which cut funds for the program from $97 million to $9 million. With the $9 million, only four of the new high-powered stations now under construction could be completed.

LOCATIONS of the new transmitters have not been revealed. Known U. S. foreign transmitters are now at Tangier, Munich, Saloniaka, Honolulu and Manila. Their power is to be increased. One of the new transmitters is to be aboard a psychological warfare ship, to move into troubled areas. It would be completely equipped with a plant for printing airplane-drop leaflets, posters, pamphlets and the whole range of information services.

As a matter of fact, the extent to which the State Department has been using printed material in its anti-Communist campaign is little realized. Foreign language radio broadcasts by the Voice of America have received the most publicity and attention. But the non-radio programs are equally effective.

One of the most extensive is a news photo service, run by Harry S. Casler, a former New York picture editor. This is the outgrowth of a pictorial service first started by Nelson Rockefeller when he was co-ordinator for Inter-American affairs. After the war, all this work was transferred to State Department.

PHOTOGRAPHS of prominent foreigners making visits to the United States made good material for their home-town newspapers. One of the most successful publicity jobs in connection with the Korean war has been picture coverage on foreign troop detachments in action at the front, sent to the newspapers back home.

About $1,500,000 a year is now earmarked for this picture service. Another $2,000,000 a year goes into a more elaborate program of posters, pamphlets and magazine-type publications. It is under general supervision of John L. Dunning, a former press association and publishing company editor. There are some 100 titles for publications of this sort now making the rounds.

The plan here has been to prepare "pilot models" in the United States, then ship them to the U. S. embassies for criticisms and revisions to suit each particular country. Final editions are then printed in the language of the country to which it is sent. This process changes made in the program schedule for WNAE. The Civilian Defense program will be heard this week at 5:45 on Saturday evening. The Camera Club of the Air is likewise moving back to a Saturday evening time at 6:45. Byron Swanson's program will take at least a brief hiatus until some evening time becomes available on WNAE after Daylight Savings Times comes into effect. There will be several changes that will occur as soon as the old D.S.T. becomes effective again. This is in addition to the changes that will be made in the habits of your children about getting up and going to bed.

All for lovelier living is Vicki Vola, the radio voice of Betty Moore, nationally known interior decorating personality, heard on Mutual each Saturday morning on the "Your Home Beautiful" broadcasts.

You are invited to tune into a special series of programs this next week at 7:15 Monday through Friday mornings. Called the American Craftsman Hour, this program features the original songs of Sheridan Baker with Sheridan accompanied at the Hammond organ in the V. F. W. by Lloyd Van Tassel. Each morning Sheridan salutes a different segment of the nation's industrial life.

A CALIFORNIA friend whose food we always enjoy gives us these two delicate recipes. The orange wine cream makes a very special dessert treat. Her cocktail sauce is perfect for Sunday supper snacks.

California Orange-Wine Cream (Serves 6)

Two-thirds cup orange juice, 1/2 cup white port wine, or an additional 1/2 cup orange juice, 1 package orange-flavored gelatin, dash of salt, 1 (6-ounce) can evaporated milk, chilled for whipping, 1 egg slightly beaten, 2 teaspoons grated orange rind.

Heat orange juice and wine to simmering; add gelatin; stir until dissolved. Add salt. Let cool thoroughly. When gelatin mixture is completely cold, whip chilled milk until light and fluffy.

Gradually beat in gelatin mixture; beat in egg; add orange rind.

Pour into sherbet glasses or a serving bowl. Chill until firm. Serve plain or with whipped cream.

Sherried Cream Cocktail Sauce (Makes about 1 1/2 cups sauce)

Three-quarters cup heavy cream or evaporated milk, 1/4 cup sherry

Data On Space Required By Long-harvest Crops

Most of the vegetables which have a long harvest are slow growing. One sowing will usually suffice for the Liberty garden, but it is easy to sow too much for family needs.

This is especially likely to happen with greens, such as Swiss chard and New Zealand spinach. These are among the most efficient of crops, comparing their yield by the space occupied.

One sowing of either will be ready to start harvesting in 60 days, and a family serving can be harvested from six inches of row.

They can be sown as soon as the frost leaves the ground in the early spring. In sixty days you begin to cut the leaves as needed, and this can be continued in a normal year for sixteen weeks, occasionally for three or more weeks longer.

So for one serving a week you sow six to eight to ten feet. These crops replace the leaves you have cut. You do not actually cut a serving from the plants growing on six inches of row; but their replacement activities provide repeated harvests from the same space, so that this small unit is your guide for planning.

Overplanting of these crops causes poor quality. They must be cut hard to maintain tenderness. Chard leaves should not grow longer than ten inches, and only the tips of New Zealand spinach stems are cut. The harder you cut, the more tender leaves are produced. Parsley is a similar crop, usually overplanted.

Broccoli, the home gardener's cauliflower; salsify, vegetable oyster plant; parsnips, which give an all-winter harvest; egg plant, peppers and late tomatoes are all crops which require only one sowing or planting to produce a harvest that continues until winter's arrival.

Data for estimating the garden space required for these crops follows:

STICK UP FOR RIGHTS

AND there is still another matter you shouldn't overlook. Men, as a rule, are more egotistical than women. Thus, the older man who marries a young wife doesn't find it too hard to convince himself that he married her for no other reason than that he is the most fascinating man she ever met. A smart young wife can, with a little flattery, keep that illusion alive as long as it is to her advantage to do so.

But women aren't usually so sure of themselves. They worry and doubt and mentally match their charms against those of every woman they meet. Remember, if you were married to him for 10 years, you would be 63 and he would be 38—the prime of manhood.

So it isn't easy for an older woman to sell herself and stay sold on the idea that she is more attractive to a young man than are younger women. And no young man is going to work as hard to keep an older wife sold on that idea as a young wife would work to keep an older husband's ego inflated.

That is what you'll have to face if you marry a man so much younger than yourself.

Better face it now than later.

HER husband has only one fault. But it is serious enough to make his wife miserably unhappy. He wants to be the "big boss" of the family—to give orders and have his wife jump to carry them out. If she doesn't jump, he sulks. And, she says, he has told her often, "Honey, if you do as I say and put up no argument, everything will run smoothly."

"It isn't that his requests are unreasonable," she says. "None of them is. It's just the idea—do this and do that, or else."

A marriage isn't a dictatorship—it's a partnership. And if the only way a wife can keep peace is to continually "Yes" her husband, never daring to disagree with him, jumping to do his bidding, then the peace is purchased at too high a price.

Mr. Randinelli was graduated from Youngsville High School in 1947 and is employed by Artico Brothers Construction Company, Youngsville.

Mr. Randinelli was graduated from Youngsville High School in 1947 and is employed by Artico Brothers Construction Company, Youngsville.

FIGHTING isn't the worst thing that can happen to a marriage. If a woman turns herself into a doormat she is doing herself, her husband and eventually their marriage a great injustice.

For no human being can for long have any respect for the person who does not insist on his rights as an individual.

So keep your spirit. Next time the "big boss" gives you an order, say pleasantly: "How about putting that in the form of a request?"

The "big boss" may sulk awhile and accuse you of trying to start a fight. But down in his heart he'll have a lot more respect for you.

The Changing Landscapes

RALPH G. ECKERT

Hello folks, it seems just about impossible to keep a full staff on the job here in Warren County. Our number three loss in less than a year is Bob Scott. A vacancy in the Elkins, W. Va. office of the Department of Interior gave him the opportunity to transfer to a location in the vicinity of his home. His duties as Hydraulic Engineer will include gauging the rivers and streams in that area. This work is more in line with Bob's desire to remain strictly in the engineering field. Good luck Bob and drop us a line once in a while telling us how the fishing is.

Lauren Mourer completed the conservation survey and the farm plan on his Hull Hill farm. Lauren has some pretty steep land that he is retiring to trees and permanent hay.

Walter Nielsen, Veteran Agriculture instructor, from Pleasant Township worked up the plan for his farm along the old Warren-Tidioute road. Walter's big problem is getting rid of excess water coming from adjoining farm land. He plans to build an open drain to pick up and get rid of some of the water and then build a pond to use the rest of it.

Carl Johnson, Chandlers Valley farmer, has completed his farm plan with help of an SCS technician. His main problem at present is getting a good farm hand, but along conservation lines his troubles are poor pasture and woodland. His plan now calls for leveling some of the hummocks and seeding ladino clover and orchard grass to give the stock a full season of pasture. Improving the woodland will consist of cutting crooked, diseased, and mature trees as recommended by the farm forester and interplanting the open areas.

Jordan Christensen of Columbus Township, has planted a multi-flora rose contour fence on his Baker Hill farm. The fence is between his strip cropping and pasture, and was laid out with the assistance of Jack Decker, SCS Aid.

See you all next week.

A immer wool price of $1.30 per pound was predicted for Pennsylvania recently by William Connell, livestock specialist at Pennsylvania State College.

Connell made the prediction at a recent meeting of the Northwest Pennsylvania Sheep and Woolgrowers Cooperative Association. He said he price would compare with 50 or 60 cents a pound less than a year ago.

Connell said the number of sheep in Pennsylvania had dropped from 50,000 to 228,000 from 1942 to 1949.

At the same time he urged farmers to wait until July or the date of the area pool price-setting, to sell their wools, even though earlier offers look good.

Three dusts have been found effective against cabbage caterpillars, according to two Pennsylvania State College research workers.

L. E. Dills and M. L. Odland named the dust as Dieldrin, DDT, and TDE.

DDT was found to give excellent results each year, they added, on all species. TDE, used for three years, gave results almost as good and has the advantage of leaving residue less poisonous, according to the researchers.

However, the survey shows that one year of research indicates Dieldrin might be better than either DDT or TDE. The dust has proved more toxic, experimental animals and the researchers advise restricting its use until further information is available.

Two-thirds of the livestock of the United States is raised west of the Mississippi River.

NEWS OF THE WORLD AS SEEN IN PICTURES

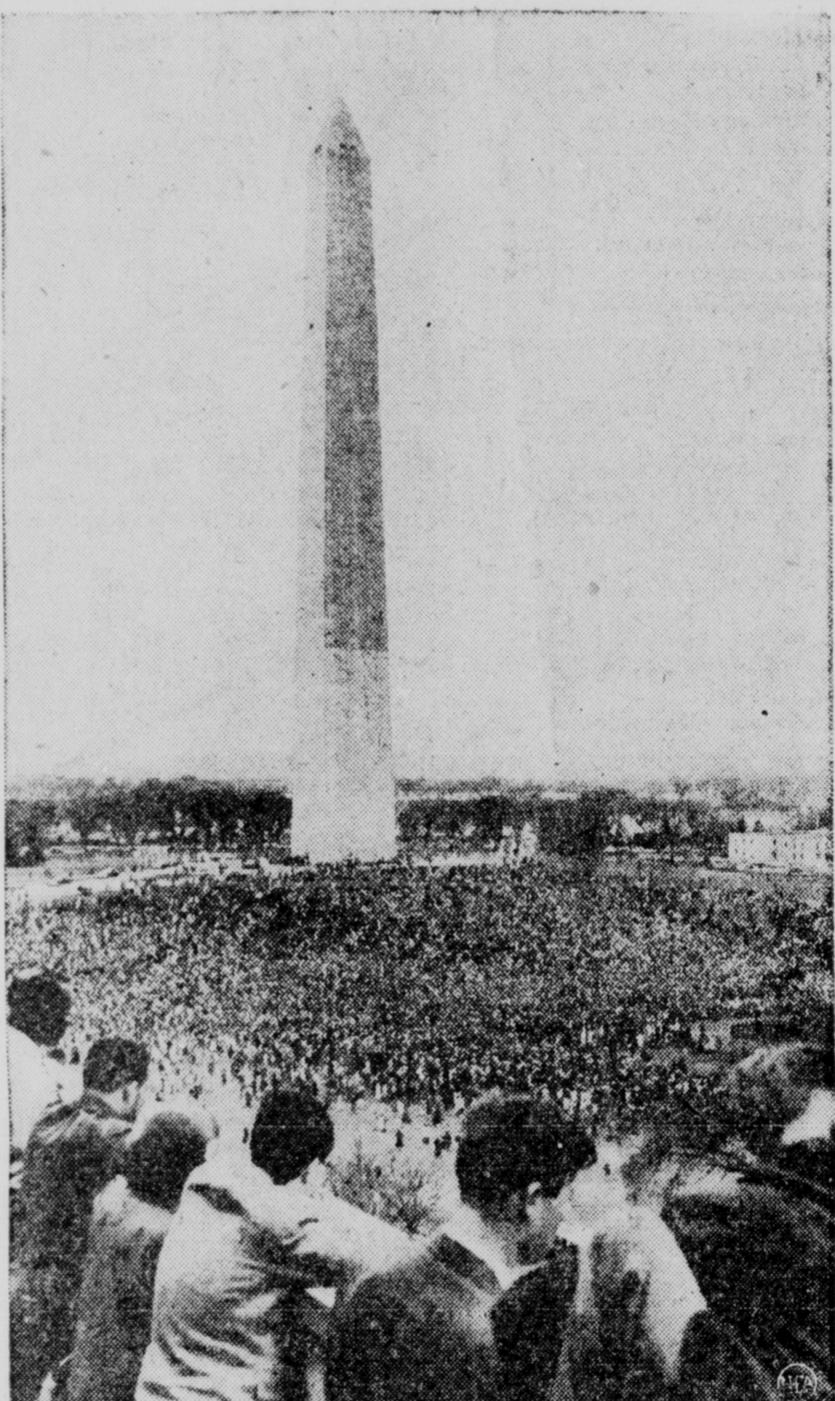

LEAVING NATIONAL AIRPORT—Gen. Douglas MacArthur shows his fatigue after being up all night working on his speech to Congress. He's pictured with Mrs. MacArthur and their 13-year-old son Arthur leaving Washington's National Airport by car for their hotel after receiving a tremendous welcome.

THE THREAT IS GLOBAL—Members of the Senate and House of Representatives hear Gen. Douglas MacArthur declare, "The Chinese threat is a global one," and the U. S. must fight it in Europe as well as Asia.

DOWN THE AVENUE—A police motorcycle escort leads the way down Pennsylvania Ave. for General MacArthur's motorcade. The general is leaving the Capitol en route to ceremonies at the Washington Monument.

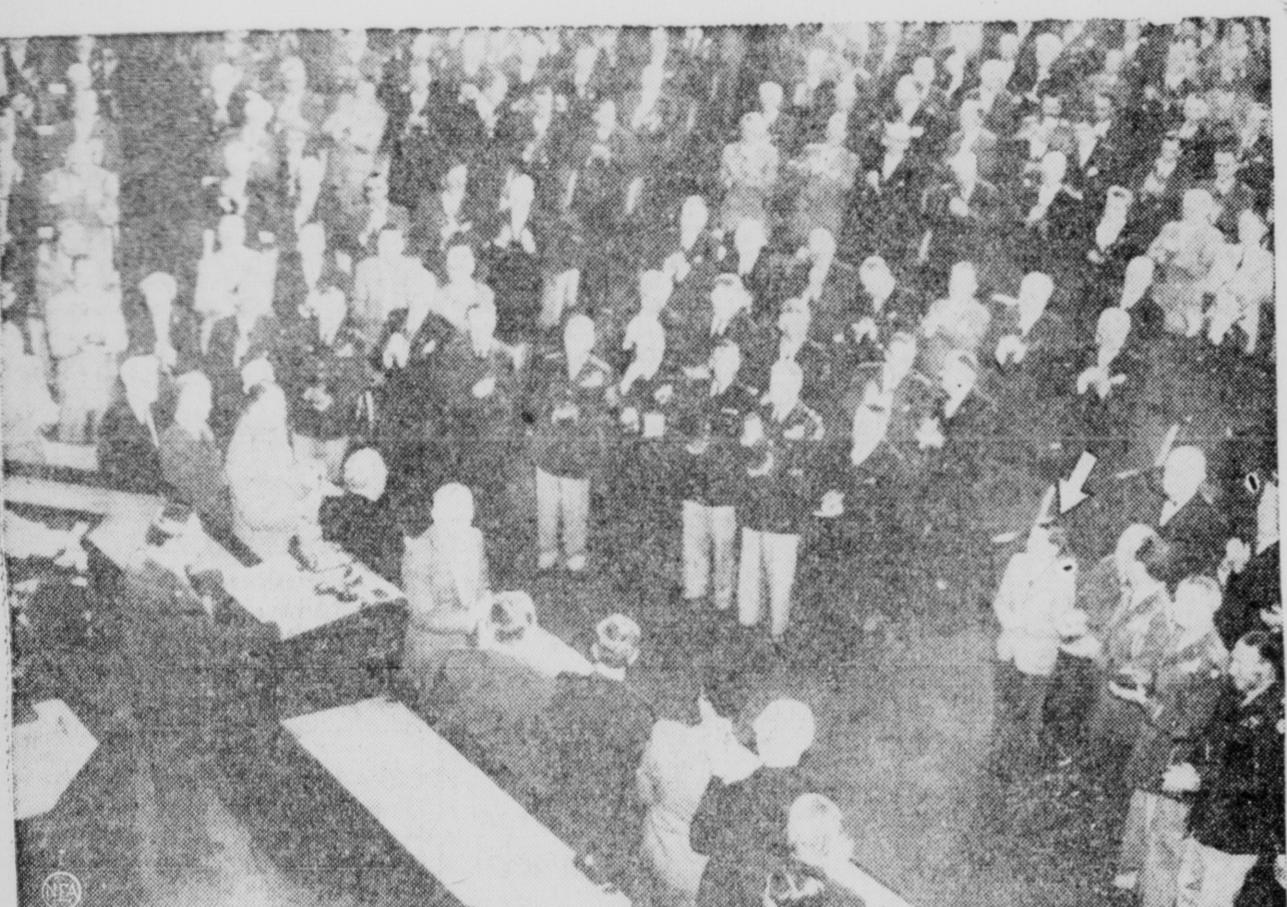

MONUMENTAL CROWD—Great throngs converge at the Washington Monument to watch ceremonies honoring the returned Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

THE GENERAL IS HEARD—Gen. Douglas MacArthur tells a meeting of Congress that the Joint Chiefs of Staff approved his views, and that criticism came largely from "lay circles" abroad.

RESERVED FOR GENERAL MACARTHUR—If General MacArthur wants it, he has a suite of offices all ready for him at the Pentagon in Washington. Here a WAC private lounge near the general's desk in Room 2E664, and reads all about MacArthur's homecoming. The suite, newly redecorated, has been used occasionally by General Eisenhower.

A SON'S APPLAUSE—Thirteen-year-old Arthur MacArthur, beneath arrow at right, joins congressmen and other government and military officials applauding the speech of his father, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

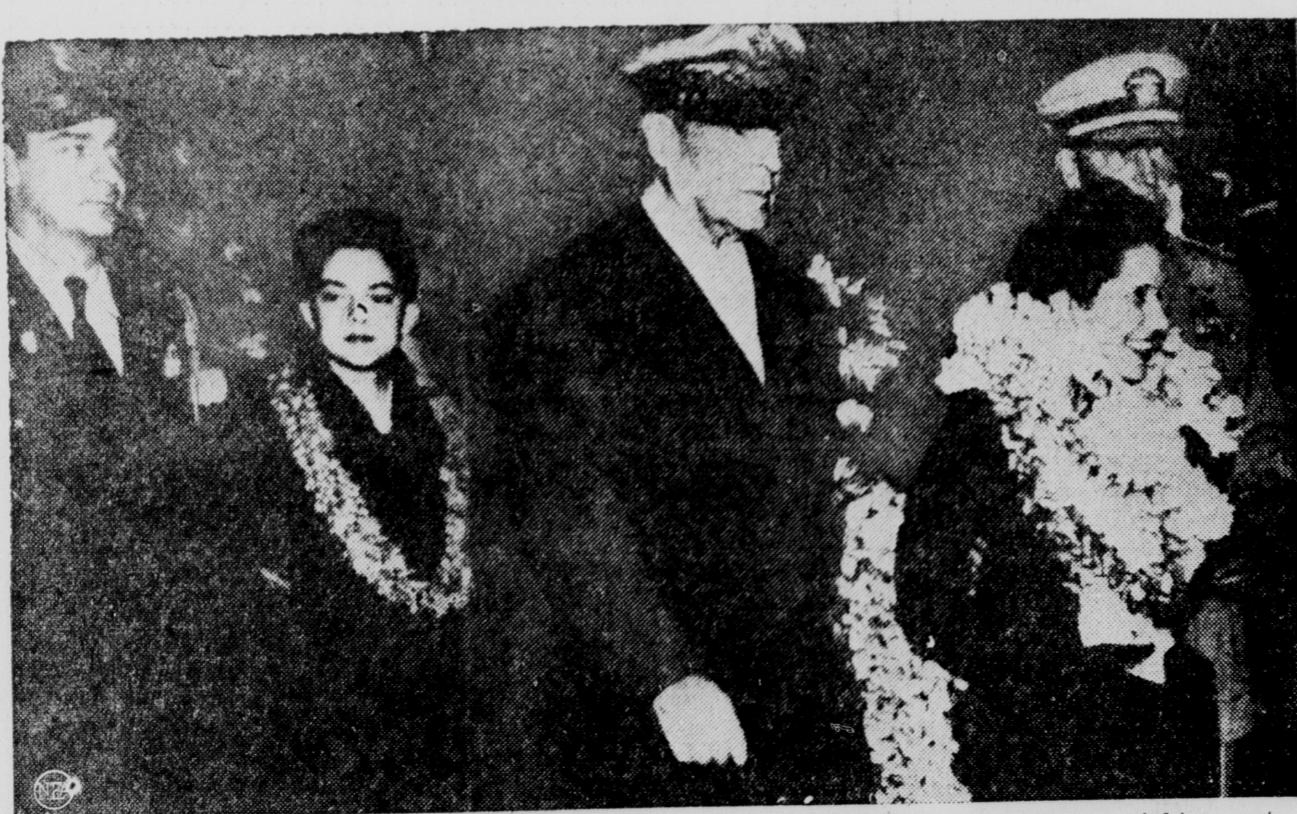

GENERAL (MACARTHUR) STRIKE—New York pier workers carry placards protesting the ouster of General MacArthur as Far Eastern commander. Two thousand AFL longshoremen knocked off work for an hour to register their sentiments. It cost each of them $2 in lost working time.

ARRIVES FOR SPEECH—Gen. Douglas MacArthur arrives at the Capitol by car to present his views to a joint session of Congress.

MACARTHURS ARRIVE IN HONOLULU—Admiral Arthur Radford, extreme right, greets General Douglas MacArthur's party as it arrived in Honolulu for a 24-hour stopover en route to the General. The general, center, is flanked by his wife and their son, Arthur. At extreme left is Colonel Anthony Story, the general's pilot.

You Will Always Find A Friendly Welcome In The Churches Of Warren

Two Tragedies of Greed

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

I LACKED space in my last article to complete the story of Abraham and Lot, from my "Rhymed Introduction to the Bible." Before going on to Moses and others, I should like to add the lines concerning Lot:

Two many people are like Lot:
They're after all that can be got;
And not for peace would they forego
To grab things for themselves. Oh no!
For Lot, as he looked o'er the plain,
Chose what he thought the most to gain.
But selfishness defeat itself,
And in his selfish love of self,
Lot, down in Sodom, found full soon,
That he had gone the way of ruin.
The way of ruin has been the end
Of some, who sought to apprehend
For self, the things that rightly should
Have all been for the common good.
The Bible tells of such a man.
His name was, as you'll see, Achan.
How war and loot are things that I
Don't like at all to justify.
But warlike times are crude and rough,
And victors loot a lot of stuff,
Which, adage says, to them belong;
Though you and I may think it wrong.

I do not like this tale at all,
And yet it grimly points a moral.
The Israelites much loot, you see,
Had taken from an enemy.

This Achan from the common store
Tried from the others to grab more.
From what belonged to all he stole,
And in his tent hid in a hole,
Some bars of silver, and a robe;

And when within his tent a probe
Revealed this hidden, stolen stuff,
His punishment was dire enough.

I surely would not like to see

Upon a man's whole family

So terrible a fate decreed,

Even for such a selfish deed.

And yet, like this old-time Achan

Is every selfish, grabbing man,

Who, in our modern years of strife,

When some are risking, giving, life,

Thinks just how he may for himself

Make sure of gaining power, or profit.

For always in the wartime years

Are patriots and profiteers.

The Bible thus has much to say

About things happening today.

For now, as then, the men who steal

Are enemies of the commonwealth.

The patriot is he, alone,

Sets common good above his own.

UNORTHODOX BIDDING PUTS FOE OFF TRACK

BY OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service

When Sam Fry, Jr., and Peter Leventritt won the Eastern States pair championship recently they showed that teaching orthodox bidding methods at the Card School hasn't made them forget how to hornswoggle their opponents with a change of pace.

Sam held the North cards of the hand shown today, and decided to make a psychic bid of one no-trump. Pete's response of two clubs was the Stayman Convention, asking the opening bidder to show a biddable major if he had one. "Is that Stayman?" asked West. "Yep," said Pete. "Normal no-trumps?" continued West. "Uh-huh," nodded Pete.

Meanwhile, Fry tried not to break out in a cold sweat. Leventritt had no way of knowing that the opening bid was a psychic, so he had one. "Is that Stayman?" asked West. "Yep," said Pete. "Normal no-trumps?" continued West. "Uh-huh," nodded Pete.
